

Part III: Resources For Making Your World Map

Color Scheme and Index for Countries and Nearby Areas

Creating an accurate list of the regions of the world is no easy task, and one that geographers have wrestled with for a long time. We decided to group countries by continent, so a familiar region like Central America appears with North America. Oceania, which is not a continent, is listed with Australia for convenience and is used as a heading to represent the countries and other islands in the tropical areas of Pacific Ocean. Islands outside the Caribbean Sea and tropical Pacific Ocean area are grouped with the nearest geographically adjacent continent.

The continents Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe, North America, and South America are listed alphabetically below. The seventh continent, Antarctica, does not contain a recognized country, but is labeled on the World Map Project map. Antarctica is generally painted white. Every fifth line is underlined to aid readability.
